nationally recognized expert in the development of strategic alliances among nonprofit organizations and strategic planning. Over the years Dr. Yankey has served as Acting Dean of the Mandel School and Interim Executive Director of the Mandel Center. He was also elected to serve multiple terms as chair of the MSASS Steering Committee. In addition to excelling in research, Dr. Yankey also stood out as an educator and mentor. He has been named three times as Outstanding Teacher of the Year by Mandel School students and an additional three times by students from the Mandel Center. Dr. Yankey is not only an educator of national prominence but a very popular teacher, excellent social work role model and effective volunteer and community leader. Thank you, Dr. Yankey, for 32 years of service to MSASS. So what’s next for Dr. Yankey? He will be an Emeritus Professor for MSASS and continually influence Case in such a positive manner.

First Quarterly Staff Meeting

The First Quarterly Staff Meeting was held on Monday, April 11. This new format replaces both the Administrative Manager’s Meeting and the Staff Meeting. The goal of the meeting is two fold. First, to keep all staff informed of what is going on throughout MSASS, which will help us better understand all aspects of the School. This is accomplished in part by having short updates from Dean Gilmore and the various Committees in the School, including Budget, Research and Training, Library, IT, and WEC, in addition to general announcements.

Second, to delve deeper into topics that further our understanding of the School. This will include current School and University topics. It will not be information or colloquium style topics, but rather more of a “working” meeting where we can have retreat follow-up, discuss strategic planning, or learn more about University changes that directly affect us.

The next meeting will be held on Monday, July 11 at 9:00-10:30 in room 323. Any suggestions for future meeting topics and comments about the meeting format are welcome. Please provide Karen Powers with comments.

Questions of the Issue:

1) How long did the Hundred Years War last?
2) Which country makes Panama hats?
3) From which animal do we get catgut?
4) In which month do Russians celebrate the October Revolution?
5) What is a camel’s hair brush made of?
6) The Canary Islands in the Atlantic are named after what animal?
7) What was King George V’s first name?
8) What color is a purple finch?
9) Where are Chinese gooseberries from?
10) How long did the Thirty Years War last?

Answers at the bottom of the page

Administrative News

Tuesday, April 26 2005

Mandel School of Applied Social Sciences

Volume 1, Issue 5

Goodbye Old Friends

Three of our friends will be leaving MSASS because of retirement: Art Biagianti, director of Harris Library; Joe Pyles, Field Education Advisor; and John Yankey, Professor.

Art Biagianti: Art joined the Case community in 1985. Dean Gilmore says, “Art has educated me on the importance of the Harris Library to the education and research missions of the School. A Dean could not ask for a better Library Director.” Art earned his MSAS in 1969 and the MLS from Case in 1976.

As a social worker and a librarian, Art has made a lasting mark on our school and on a generation of social workers. Thank you, Art, for over 20 years of service to Case and MSASS.

Joe Pyles: Joe initially retired from full-time clinical social work control, multicultural aspects of health-care, euthanasia and physician assisted suicide. The trip included guided tours to the Netherlands and surrounding areas. This experience is designed to familiarize students and faculty with Dutch social policies for homelessness, prostitution, drug use, substance abuse, social services, adoption research and policy, schools, neighborhood social in 1986; now, Joe will be retiring from field advising at MSASS. He has been in the consulting position for more than 15 years. He graduated from the MSASS Master’s program in social work in 1952 and rejoined MSASS as a consultant in 1987. When asked what he liked most about working with students, he says, “There is never a dull moment with the students. It is a challenge to help them see that by their mistakes they learn. It is a challenge to teach students about the core of social work. That part of advising is enjoyable. Seeing them change over the two year program and march at graduation is satisfying.” We salute Joe’s inspiring attitude and dedication to teach students for the past 18 years.

John Yankey: Dr. Yankey, the Leonard W. Mayo Professor of Family and Child Welfare since 1991, has exemplified the Mandel School’s mission of education, research and community service. He is a...
Amsterdam

(continued from page 1)

MSASS sent a class of undergraduates who learned about social work in a very general sense, having lectures ranging from drugs to prostitution to rehabilitation centers. The graduate classes included health policy, criminal justice and adoption. The Department of Bioethics sent under-graduates as well as a graduate class. Faculty and staff members were also offered an opportunity to register for continuing education credits.

Meaghan Mroz-Barrett, an undergrad bioethics student who went on the trip, was asked what she thought about the trip: “I thought it was really busy but informative.” What did she like most about the trip? “I really liked visiting the parliament.”

In previous years, this trip consisted of less than 20 people. Because of the popularity of this class, MSASS is looking to expand this program to other countries.

Photo Album

I went to Amsterdam with the undergraduate class. I work at MSASS so having an opportunity to learn about what MSASS teacher was a wonderful experience (plus, it’s a week-long trip to the Netherlands for 3 credits!). We had a pre-trip class a month beforehand where we learned about different policies in the United States. We had lectures about drug policies, prostitution, etc. from 9am till 4pm. Although the day was quite useful, it was also quite long. Free lunch can only go so far.

The actual trip was extremely fun. We left Cleveland Friday evening and arrived in Amsterdam Saturday morning. And since class didn’t start until Monday, many students went out on the own to explore the city, despite jetlag. The most amazing thing about this class is that I have never learned so much in such a short amount of time (and retained the knowledge!). It was also extremely tiring because the undergraduates learned a little bit of everything and had a grueling schedule. We had class from 9am until 5pm. Some days started at 8am; including an hour long traveling, many undergraduates had to be out of bed by 6am and not go back to the hotel until 6pm. I heard health policy didn’t have to wake up until 9pm. We weren’t jealous. Of course we weren’t.

On Monday, we had group lectures in which everybody learned about some of the social policies in Amsterdam. That was extremely informative, but again, very long. Tuesday to Thursday was when different classes broke into groups. We went to youth centers, drug user rooms, Anne Frank house, a coffeeshop, an asylum center, etc. We even had an escort tour of the Red Light District. I never realized how much of a bubble I lived in until I went to some of these places. I know that had I come to Amsterdam on my own, I would never have gone to a drug user room or the Red Light District. This was truly a life-changing experience.

Despite the long hours of the classes, this trip was truly extraordinary. The one thing that stands out is the friendships I’ve made. For me, there was an extra familiarity with the faculty and staff members who went because I am a student employee at MSASS, through this trip, I had a chance to get to know these people beyond their name on a mailbox. So thank you MSASS, for opening my eyes to a whole new world, at home and overseas.

Research ShowCASE

On April 6 and 7, 2005, hundreds of scientists and scholars came together for two days of collaboration, creativity, and innovation. From real-world applications to critical insights to creative and intellectual activities, Research ShowCASE highlighted the full range of faculty, postdoctoral, graduate, and undergraduate research at Case. This year’s highlights included:

- Symposia exploring stem-cell therapies and how women can transfer their research to the marketplace
- Provocative panels on child development, tuberculosis and AIDS, smart polymers, and Alzheimer’s, and special sessions probing topics from space exploration to fiction and nonfiction writing.

If you missed Research ShowCASE, you missed an opportunity to view some of the most exciting and important research being done on our campus, in Ohio, and in the world. Planning for Research ShowCASE 2006 is underway.

Congratulations to...

David Biegel on his award from the Ohio Department of Mental Health to study the impact of supported employment for consumers with co-occurring mental and substance use disorders.

Claudia Coulton and Sharon Milligan for securing two years of funding from the Gund Foundation to support the activities of the Center on Urban Poverty and Social Change in Blackboard have all been greatly enhanced by her efforts.

Research ShowCASE

Terra Billingslea We thank Terra for her contributions to Career Services and wish her all the best in her new promotion and transfer. Terra is transferring to the Office of Student Community Services. In her role as department assistant III, Terra will provide administrative support to the office.

Sharon Gravius Sharon is taking a new position at Kelvin Library. She will be leaving MSASS and the Harris Library at the end of this month to become coordinator of collection planning and management.

The actual trip was extremely fun. We left Cleveland Friday evening and arrived in Amsterdam Saturday morning. And since class didn’t start until Monday, many students went out on the own to explore the city, despite jetlag.

The most amazing thing about this class is that I have never learned so much in such a short amount of time (and retained the knowledge!). It was also extremely tiring because the undergraduates learned a little bit of everything and had a grueling schedule. We had class from 9am until 5pm. Some days started at 8am; including an hour long traveling, many undergraduates had to be out of bed by 6am and not go back to the hotel until 6pm. I heard health policy didn’t have to wake up until 9pm. We weren’t jealous. Of course we weren’t.

On Monday, we had group lectures in which everybody learned about some of the social policies in Amsterdam. That was extremely informative, but again, very long. Tuesday to Thursday was when different classes broke into groups. We went to youth centers, drug user rooms, Anne Frank house, a coffeeshop, an asylum center, etc. We even had an escort tour of the Red Light District. I never realized how much of a bubble I lived in until I went to some of these places. I know that had I come to Amsterdam on my own, I would never have gone to a drug user room or the Red Light District. This was truly a life-changing experience.

Despite the long hours of the classes, this trip was truly extraordinary. The one thing that stands out is the friendships I’ve made. For me, there was an extra familiarity with the faculty and staff members who went because I am a student employee at MSASS; through this trip, I had a chance to get to know these people beyond their name on a mailbox. So thank you MSASS, for opening my eyes to a whole new world, at home and overseas.
A Day In The Life Of An Undergrad
By Winnie Lai

I went to Amsterdam with the undergraduate class. I work at MSASS so having an opportunity to learn about what MSASS teacher was a wonderful experience (plus, it’s a week-long trip to the Netherlands for 3 credits!). We had a pre-trip class a month beforehand where we learned about different policies in the United States. We had lectures about drug policies, prostitution, etc. from 9am till 4pm. Although the day was quite useful, it was also quite long. Free lunch can only go so far.

The actual trip was extremely fun. We left Cleveland Friday evening and arrived in Amsterdam Saturday morning. And since class didn’t start until Monday, many students went out on the own to explore the city, despite jetlag. The most amazing thing about this class is that I have never learned so much in such a short amount of time (and retained the knowledge!). It was also extremely tiring because the undergraduates learned a little bit of everything and had a grueling schedule. We had class from 9am until 5pm. Some days started at 8am, including an hour long traveling, many undergraduates had to be out of bed by 6am and not go back to the hotel until 6pm. I heard health policy didn’t have to wake up until 9pm. We weren’t jealous. Of course we weren’t.

On Monday, we had group lectures in which everybody learned about some of the social policies in Amsterdam. That was extremely informative, but again, very long. Tuesday to Thursday was when different classes broke into groups. We went to youth centers, drug user rooms, Anne Frank house, a coffee shop, an asylum center, etc. We even had an escorted tour of the Red Light District. I never realized how much of a bubble I lived in until I went to some of these places. I know that had I come to Amsterdam on my own, I would never have gone to a drug user room or the Red Light District. This was truly a life-changing experience.

Despite the long hours of the classes, this trip was truly extraordinary. The one thing that stands out is the friendships I’ve made. For me, there was an extra familiarity with the faculty and staff members who went because I am a student employee at MSASS, through this trip, I had a great opportunity to get to know these people beyond their name on a mailbox. So thank you MSASS, for opening my eyes to a whole new world, at home and overseas.

New Grant Awards

Congratulations to...

David Biegel on his award from the Ohio Department of Mental Health to study the impact of supported employment for consumers with co-occurring mental and substance use disorders.

Claudia Coutlon and Sharon Milligan for securing two years of funding from the Gund Foundation to support the activities of the Center on Urban Poverty and Social Change.

Research ShowCASE

On April 6 and 7, 2005, hundreds of scientists and scholars gathered together for two days of collaboration, creativity, and innovation. From real-world applications to critical insights to creative and intellectual activities, Research ShowCASE highlighted full the range of faculty, postdoctoral, graduate, and undergraduate research at Case. This year’s highlights included:

• Symposia exploring stem-cell therapies and how women can transfer their research to the marketplace.
• Provocative panels on child development, tuberculosis and AIDS, smart polymers, and Alzheimer’s, and special sessions probing topics from space exploration to fiction and nonfiction writing.
• Workshops examining the commercial aspects of research and discovery.
• Research from an expansive range of disciplines, with special representation from the humanities and arts.

If you missed Research ShowCASE, you missed an opportunity to view some of the most exciting and important research being done on our campus, in Ohio, and in the world. Planning for Research ShowCASE 2006 is underway.

Goodbye, Thanks and Good Luck:

Terra Billingslea

We thank Terra for her contributions to Career Services and wish her all the best in her new promotion and transfer. Terra is transferring to the Office of Student Community Services. In her role as department assistant III, Terra will provide administrative support to the office.

Sharon Gravius

Sharon is taking a new position at Kelvin Smith Library. She will be leaving MSASS and the Harris Library at the end of this month to become coordinator of collection planning and management.

Save the date!

Wednesday 4/27/05 @ 3-4pm
Employee Appreciation Event at Jillian’s in Cleveland Heights.

Join your fellow MSASS faculty and staff for free appetizers and pool at Jillian’s. Event sponsored by Case Human Resources. Please sign up in Administrative Services.

Wednesday 5/18/05
Administrative Services Training — Open Form.

This is your opportunity to ask questions of the Admin Svcs staff — finance, HR, R&T, facilities, IT…

There will be no training in summer — June-August.

Welcome New Employee!!!

Michelle Munson
(Mandel School faculty)
nationally recognized expert in the development of strategic alliances among nonprofit organizations and strategic planning. Over the years Dr. Yankey has served as Acting Dean of the Mandel School and Interim Executive Director of the Mandel Center. He was also elected to serve multiple terms as chair of the MSASS Steering Committee. In addition to excelling in research, Dr. Yankey also stood out as a educator and mentor. He has been named three times as Outstanding Teacher of the Year by Mandel School students and an additional three times by students from the Mandel Center. Dr. Yankey is not only an educator of national prominence but a very popular teacher, excellent social work role model and effective volunteer and community leader. Thank you, Dr. Yankey, for 32 years of service to MSASS. So what’s next for Dr. Yankey? He will be an Emeritus Professor for MSASS and continually influence Case in such a positive manner.

First Quarterly Staff Meeting

The First Quarterly Staff Meeting was held on Monday, April 11. This new format replaces both the Administrative Manager’s Meeting and the Staff Meeting. The goal of the meeting is two fold. First, to keep all staff informed of what is going on throughout MSASS, which will help us better understand all aspects of the School. This is accomplished in part by having short updates from Dean Gilmore and the various Committees in the School, including Budget, Research and Training, Library, IT, and WEC, in addition to general announcements.

Second, to delve deeper into topics that further our understanding of the School. This will include current School and University topics. It will not be information or colloquium style topics, but rather more of a “working” meeting where we can have retreat follow-up, discuss strategic planning, or learn more about University changes that directly affect us.

The next meeting will be held on Monday, July 11 at 9:00-10:30 in room 323. Any suggestions for future meeting topics and comments about the meeting format are welcome. Please provide Karen Powers with comments.

Goodbye Old Friends

Three of our friends will be leaving MSASS because of retirement: Art Biagianti, director of Harris Library; Joe Pyles, Field Education Advisor; and John Yankey, Professor.

Art Biagianti:
Art joined the Case community in 1985. Dean Gilmore says, “Art has educated me on the importance of the Harris Library to the education and research missions of the School. A Dean could not ask for a better Library Director.” Art earned his MS in 1969 and the MLS from Case in 1976. As a social worker and a librarian, Art has made a lasting mark on our school and on a generation of social workers. Thank you, Art, for over 20 years of service to Case and MSASS.

Joe Pyles:
Joe initially retired from full-time clinical social work in 1986; now, Joe will be retiring from field advising at MSASS. He has been in the consulting position for more than 15 years. He graduated from the MSASS Master’s program in social work in 1952 and rejoined MSASS as a consultant in 1987. When asked what he liked most about working with students, he says, “There is never a dull moment with the students. It is a challenge to help them see that by their mistakes they learn. It is a challenge to teach students about the core of social work. That part of advising is enjoyable. Seeing them change over the two year program and march at graduation is satisfying.” We salute Joe’s inspiring attitude and dedication to teach students for the past 18 years.

John Yankey:
Dr. Yankey, the Leonard W. Mayo Professor of Family and Child Welfare since 1991, has exemplified the Mandel School’s mission of education, research and community service. He is a (continued on page 4)

MSASS Hits Amsterdam

On March 4 – 13, MSASS and the Department of Bioethics sent over 80 faculty, student and staff members to the Netherlands. Spring-Break Study in the Netherlands is an annual trip to Amsterdam and surrounding areas. This experience is designed to familiarize students and faculty with Dutch social policies for homelessness, prostitution, drug use, substance abuse, social services, adoption research and policy, schools, neighborhood social control, multicultural aspects of health care, euthanasia and physician assisted suicide. The trip included guided tours of neighborhoods and social institutions and daily lectures by government officials, practicing social workers, and many of Holland’s most prominent scholars. Students were asked to compare Holland with the United States and understand the strengths and weaknesses of social policies and human services in both countries. (continued on page 2)

Questions of the Issue:

1) How long did the Hundred Years War last?
2) Which country makes Panama hats?
3) From which animal do we get catup?
4) In which month do Russians celebrate the October Revolution?
5) What is a camel's hair brush made of?
6) The Canary Islands in the Atlantic are named after what animal?
7) What was King George VI's first name?
8) What color is a purple finch?
9) Where are Chinese geeseberries from?
10) How long did the Thirty Years War last?

Answers at the bottom of the page.

New Grants Awards: 2
Announcements: 3
New and Old Employees: 3
Research ShowCASE: 3
First Quarterly Staff Meeting: 4

Volume 1, Issue 5

Tuesday, April 26 2005