Ethical Research: Beyond Fraud and the IRB
Kimberly J. Strom-Gottfried, MSW, PhD 1993, LISW

Too often, discussions of research ethics center on the steps needed to avoid fraud or protect human subjects. These topics, while important, are only a fraction of the considerations for ethical research, and excessive attention to them obscures other important and meaningful considerations. Ethical dilemmas are inherent throughout the research process, from the decision about what to study and how to study it, through analysis and dissemination of findings. This presentation will address and illustrate these dilemmas and offer recommendations for strengthening research integrity.

Kim Strom-Gottfried received her MSW from Adelphi University and her Ph.D. from the Mandel School. She is the Smith P. Theimann Jr. Distinguished Professor of Ethics and Professional Practice at the UNC-Chapel Hill School of Social Work where she teaches in the areas of direct practice, education, and human resource management. Her scholarly interests involve ethics, moral courage, and leadership and she is active in training, consultation and research on these topics. She has written over 60 articles, monographs and chapters on ethics and practice and she is the author of Straight Talk about Professional Ethics and The Ethics of Practice with Minors and the forthcoming book Cultivating Courage.

Students: Join the speaker for “Advice form Mandel School Graduates,” an informal session at 1-2 p.m. in the Mandel Center Lounge prior to the colloquia.
