INTERESTED IN STUDYING THE NEEDS OF OLDER ADULTS AND THEIR FAMILIES?

The Mandel School of Applied Social Sciences is offering a program that provides a unique opportunity for social work graduate students interested in working with older adults.

CollAge (Collaborative Aging Practicum) is a collaboration between the Mandel School and community service providers for older adults. It offers a field practicum rotation with aging related assignments tailored to the individual student’s needs and interests.

Seminars with the Mandel school faculty and community based geriatric social workers afford students the opportunity to integrate course work and components of their internship by exploring issues and challenges affecting work with older adults. A mentorship program pairs a social worker possessing extensive experience in gerontology with each CollAge student.

For more information about CollAge, please contact Marjory Klein, Field Faculty Advisor at the Mandel School, by e-mail, marjory.klein@case.edu, or by telephone, (216)368-0709.
